First biodiversity park to open in Murree soon

Mansoor Ahmed Khan
BS45 5013

The country's first biodiversity park being developed in Murree is in the final stages of completion and will become functional in three months, officials in the Environment Protection Department (EPD) told Dawn.

The officials said the first of its kind facility was spread over 40 acres and its purpose was to keep the flora and fauna intact. The Punjab government would spend Rs90 million on the project. Camping will be an integral part of the park where nature lovers would be able to enjoy clean, pollution-free air. The park is likely to feature waterfalls, hiking and jogging tracks, a comprehensive information centre and scenic beauty.

An official of the EPD on condition of anonymity confirmed that entrance to the park would be ticketed, however the price was yet to be determined. The 40 acres of the park would be fenced by the government and other collaborative firms, he added.

The officials said the EPD initiated a project titled 'Development of Biodiversity Parks' in collaboration with city district governments, district governments and business communities in 2008. The project was aimed at developing biodiversity parks of Dera Ghazi Khan, Kasur, Cholistan and Murree to spread awareness among the masses regarding importance of biodiversity.

The Housing & Urban Development Department was planning to establish a housing scheme at Dharjawa Road near Sunny Bank, Murree over 40 acres. Instead, the Punjab government decided to approve a biodiversity park there.

Despite threats, Pakistan goes on with ceremony at Wagah

Adeel Qureshi
BS413635

Not only a day had passed to the carnage that claimed at least 60 lives in a suicide blast at Wagah that Punjab Rangers went on with the routine flag-lowering ceremony at the border between Pakistan and India.

The ceremony came as the Punjab Rangers decided to continue with the flag-lowering ceremony at the border despite Sunday's attack that left a pall of gloom across the country.

The decision came at a time when rumours were floating in political and media circles that the ceremony had been postponed for at least a period of three days and according to some until the situation normalised.

With chants of 'Pakistan Zindabad' and 'Allahu Akbar' in the background, people came to attend the ceremony in large numbers, leaving a clear and sound message to the attackers that the country was standing tall and brave and could by no means be weakened.

People cheered Punjab Rangers personnel during the ceremony and kept on with slogans of 'Jeevay Jeevay Pakistan' (long live Pakistan).

Corps Commander Lahore Lieutenant General Naveed Zaman said, "No one can take away passion and bravery possessed by Pakistanis."

Pakistan army also extended its praise to the Punjab Rangers for holding the flag lowering ceremony despite looming threats.

Fight to save endangered Indus dolphins, turtles

Ujala Nadeem
BS47 5275

Local legend has it that Pakistan's Indus River dolphin was once a woman, transformed by a curse from a holy man angry that she forgot to feed him one day.

After thousands of years swimming the mighty river the gentle, blind mammal is under threat from a combination of uncontrolled fishing and damage to its habitat caused by man-made dams. Conservationists are fighting to save the dolphin as well as the river's black spotted turtle, at risk from poachers who hunt it to sell to collectors and traditional medicine dealers.

They are classed as endangered on the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) red list of threatened species, which says the population has fallen by more than 50 per cent since 1944.

Breast cancer Awareness

Sehar Nadeem
BS41 3607

October may have breezed through for Areeb as this Dubai-based Pakistani designer prepared for her jewellery exhibition, but owing to the experience of her mother surviving breast cancer, she never forgot for a minute that October is also global Breast Cancer Awareness month. In fact, it upsets her that the disease isn't taken as seriously as it should be.

The theme for her new jewellery collection A Look Within is unique because the topic is not one that she picked on a whim — it's personal and close to her heart. "My mother is the reason I decided to work on breast cancer — she is a survivor. My mother, unlike many women in Pakistan, was aware of the disease and was sensible enough to go to the doctor and get herself looked at as soon as she suspected something was wrong," says Areeb.. She finds the situation disheartening. "Even when women do know what it entails, they remain hesitant to speak about their breasts and any problems related to them. Sometimes this means that they act too late," she explains.

"I often think what it is that I could do that would bring something new to peoples' minds than the traditional preconceived notions ... creating designs that can make people think in a different way is what drives me," she says.

"I wanted to work on a collection that spoke about breast cancer itself. My pieces depict how the cancerous cells spread if undetected and what happens internally and externally to the body during the spread of breast cancer," she says while describing her work..

"While the pink ribbon does an incredible job raising funds and support for cancer research, it does not say anything about the disease itself," Areeb says. "Breast

An agreement with NRSP will soon be finalised. The project team will soon be commencing its design skill assessment and also initiate cluster formation activities in identified areas in Bahawalapur and Multan.

Rs10m grant for charity hospital in Quetta

Nimra Arshad
BS40 3541

Balochistan Chief Minister Dr Abdul Malik Baloch, during a visit to a charity hospital here on Sunday, appealed to international donor agencies to help the provincial government provide medical facilities to poor people.

He announced Rs10 million grant for the Dr Kalimullah Khan Health Foundation Hospital, the first charity hospital to be set up by private sector in Balochistan and which began functioning on Sunday. The chief minister praised Dr Kalimullah Khan, the president of the hospital, for building it through his personal resources. Spread over 50,000 square feet, the hospital comprises 15 wards and 66 rooms. Dr Khan deplored that most of the areas in Balochistan were so backward that they did not have a hospital.

“Even a doctor is not found in some areas.”

“On the one hand, government hospitals are in a bad condition and, on the other, poor people cannot afford to pay bills of private hospitals. Therefore, I decided to construct a charity hospital to provide free of cost treatment to poor people,” he said.

Well-known cardiologist and senior vice president of the hospital, Professor Dr Haq Dad Tareen, said thousands of patients, including those from Afghanistan and Iran, visited the two government-run hospitals in Quetta on daily basis despite their poor condition.

He regretted that Balochistan could not meet three of the eight millennium goals set by international community: reducing death rate among newborn babies, improving maternal health and controlling the spread of infectious diseases like HIV, Aids and hepatitis.

Provincial Ministers Sardar Raza Mohammad Baraich, Dr Hamid Khan Achakzai, Abdul Raheem Ziaratwal and Nawab Ayaz Khan Jomezai announced a donation of Rs200,000 each for the hospital.

Zar Motors presents ‘Z5 E-Tricycle’, the first of its kind solar powered E-Rikshaws (Rakshas) in Pakistan. These electrical rikshaws do not require fuel (petrol or CNG) and has a minimal running cost – this means – lower fares, cheaper public transport and a much healthier environment. Propakistani reports.

Typically the leading issue in electric vehicles is their charging; Z5 it seems takes care of that particular subject comprehensively. Z5 Rikshaw can be charged through a household outlet (100V-240V) much like a cellphone or UPS. Where a complete battery charge would require a long 7 hours, one can charge Z5’s battery to an 80% capacity in merely 2 hours – which can get the job done somewhat.

Misbah, Azhar score centuries as Pakistan continue to dominate

Adeel Qureshi
BS413635

ABU DHABI: Pakistan set a mammoth 603-run target for Australia to win the second Test and save the series after declaring their second innings on 293-3 on the fourth day in Abu Dhabi on Sunday.

That put Pakistan well on course for a 2-0 series win after winning the first Test by 221 runs. Pakistan have not beaten Australia in a series since their 1-0 win at home in 1994.

Azhar Ali scored 100 not out while Misbah-ul Haq was unbeaten on 101, setting a new world record for the fastest Test half-century off just 21 balls and equalling the fastest century record of 56 balls.

Misbah, who was derided for his slow scoring rate, not only scored the fastest half century in terms of deliveries but also in terms of time spent on the crease. The national team captain hit four sixes and an equal number of boundaries to reach his fifty.

The previous record for fastest half-century was held by South Africa's Jacques Kallis, scored off 24 balls against Zimbabwe at Cape Town in 2004, whereas Bangladesh's Mohammad Ashraful held the record for the fastest fifty in 27 minutes against India in 2007.
